Re: State Convention Update

Dear Convention Delegate,

As the Coronavirus consumes the world with lessons and precautions, the Indiana Postal Workers chose to act proactively and delay the 2020 State Convention.

Our forefathers envisioned a situation where APWU members across the state could not, for whatever reason, convene at the annual convention. An emergency clause (Article 4) empowers the State Executive Board to change the date of the Convention.

The Gary Local, 2020 host, negotiated with the Convention Hotel to postpone our meeting until conditions are more favorable. The Local will hold any monies sent for registration until we convene. Any local desiring a refund may request repayment from Gary Area Local.

Our delegate's health and safety are first and foremost. It is difficult to predict what the next few months hold for the postal service and working people across America. We stand ready to help our co-workers and recover as soon as possible.

Notification will be sent as soon as the Convention is rescheduled. Please check our website for current updates. (inapwu.org)

In Solidarity,

Douglas Brown
